Greetings to those with environmental concerns ~

I hope everybody had a great weekend [especially those Bears fans out there (though the SECS football team could probably beat the Lions)]. We will continue work in our committees this week, where we can expect an action-media team up while education does their thing. Let's keep this great momentum rolling and have another amazing meeting on Wednesday!

ANNOUNCEMENTS & ENDORSEMENTS

NASADYA

NASADYA is a cleantech startup at UIUC with the mission of building a machine that converts excess electricity into hydrogen to help refineries procure cheap carbon-free hydrogen. Current sources of hydrogen contribute over 500 million tons of global emissions globally. In the process of building our machine, we will also enable renewable power plants to manage variable supply as this is currently an inefficient process. We are currently trying to grow the team, so anyone whose mission aligns with ours is welcome to reach out to the Founder, Chaitanya Gulati at cgulati4@illinois.edu

Change The Chamber

Change The Chamber is a bipartisan group of students taking on the largest dark money, pro-fossil fuel group in the United States, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. You can learn more about Change The Chamber by visiting their website <https://www.changethechamber.org/>.
